Subject : RE: Feedback regarding our recent consultation

Date : 19 Jun 2026 13:43

Dear Kirti,

I am following up on our previous correspondence. While I initially appreciated our constructive engagement and have extended my well-wishes regarding your recovery from laryngitis, I am concerned by the lack of follow-through regarding our agreed-upon timeline.

When I provided my availability, it was with the clear understanding that we had reached an agreement to move forward with the necessary financial risk assessment. The subsequent period of silence has made it impossible to finalize the documentation specifically the annuity and fund numbers required for me to institute my financial autonomy.

As this delay directly impacts my financial planning, I must be clear: the current level of communication is not meeting the professional standards I require.

I request that you provide the necessary annuity and fund details by [22 June 2026 at 11:00] to confirm that we can still proceed with this engagement.

If you are unable to provide this information by the requested time, please consider this a formal notice that I will be forced to seek alternative service providers who can meet the operational requirements and transparency standards necessary for my financial strategy.

I look forward to your immediate attention to this matter.

Regards,
Wilbur

Dear Kirti,

Thank you for your exceptionally candid, transparent, and professional reply.

I deeply appreciate your openness regarding the Saturday server constraints and your personal accountability.[1] In my line of work, we often find that open and transparent dealings are the quickest way to clear up misunderstandings. Your detailed explanation completely rebuilds the trust relationship, and I value this standard of communication immensely.

I am very sorry to hear that you are battling laryngitis. Please prioritize your rest and recovery—I wish you a very speedy and complete return to health.

In preparation for our three-hour Financial Needs Analysis (FNA) [1], and to give us a clear window to collaborate without system or time constraints, I have set aside the following three options for next week:

- Monday, 15 June 2026 (Suggested window: 13:00 – 16:00)
- Tuesday, 16 June 2026 (Suggested window: 13:00 – 16:00)
- Thursday, 18 June 2026 (Suggested window: 13:00 – 16:00)

Please take your time to recover, and once you are back in the office, kindly confirm which of these slots suits your schedule best.

I look forward to our engagement next week.

Warm regards,

Sr Wilbur William Matthee

Dear Mr Matthee,

Thank you very much for your thoughtful feedback. I truly appreciate your kind words about the service you received and am grateful that you found our interaction professional and supportive. It means a great deal to know that the guidance I provided brought clarity and value to your decision-making process.

I must sincerely apologize, as I completely lost track of time during our conversation on Saturday and we spoke beyond my cut-off time. Our servers automatically go offline from 13:30 on Saturdays, which meant I no longer had access to complete any documentation at that point. I regret the shortcoming and any inconvenience this may have caused.

Unfortunately, I am currently on sick leave for the rest of the week due to laryngitis and am unable to speak. However, we can schedule the Financial Needs Analysis (FNA) to be completed early next week. Please share three different dates and times that you are available, and I will confirm the most suitable slot.

Thank you again for your understanding and for the positive feedback - it is truly encouraging.

Kind regards,

Dear Kirti,

Thank you for your email. I appreciate the opportunity to provide feedback on our recent engagement.

My experience working with you has been very pleasant. I particularly appreciated that you gave me a voice to ask several complex questions, and I am grateful for the time you took to thoroughly explain the various aspects of the investment. Your guidance provided the clarity I needed, and I found our interaction to be highly professional and supportive.

I do, however, want to mention one area for improvement to ensure we are aligned moving forward. When we spoke on Saturday, it was my understanding that the documentation would be shared within 30 minutes; unfortunately, it was not received until Monday.

I understand that time constraints can be challenging, but I believe it is important to clear these hurdles early to ensure we are both aware of what is required and when. I hope this feedback is taken in the spirit of improving our future collaboration, as I am very happy with the service provided otherwise.

I am available to do the 3 hour Financial Need Assessment this week. If you have any slots available kindly suggest 3 possible slots for this week for the engagement

Thank you again for your assistance.

Kind regards,

Sr Wilbur William Matthee
