Dear Lizelle,

Thank you for your initial response and for referring my case to management for a decision. I truly appreciate the sympathy you have shown regarding my situation.

I am writing to you today with a heavy heart to provide an honest update on my situation. As I mentioned in my previous email, the funeral is scheduled for this week. Because I am currently destitute due to the circumstances surrounding my labour dispute and many other moving parts.

Could you please check with management if there is any update or if any further documentation is needed from my side to expedite this?

Thank you for your continued assistance and for doing what you can to help me through this crisis.

With gratitude,

Wilbur W. Matthee

Dear Lizelle,

Thank you for your patience as I navigate this incredibly painful time. Following my previous email, I want to provide your management with full context regarding why the follow-up on this policy was delayed in December, as I believe it is critical to their decision on the reinstatement.

I am currently a Specialist Nurse facing a catastrophic humanitarian crisis. Over the past year, I have been subjected to severe work-related victimization and occupational detriment following a protected disclosure. This retaliation resulted in my constructive dismissal in December 2025.

The immense pressure I have been under includes:

- Legal & Professional Battle: I have been single-handedly managing a massive legal case, including a 69-page founding affidavit and coordination with six different regulators (JSE, CMS, FSCA, etc.) to fight for my professional life.
- Mental Health Impact: I was hospitalized for Major Depressive Disorder and PTSD in June 2025 due to this victimization. I was discharged on 20 June and forced to return to work on 23 June—the very day before the Discovery Bank error (24 June) occurred.
- The December Oversight: When Metropolitan requested documents in December, I was in the midst of my dismissal and the peak of this legal battle. In a state of "multi-trauma" triage, I replied to the response but as it appears metropolitan never received the documents due to an error on my side and all the moving parts. My cognitive capacity was entirely consumed by survival and the fight against the professional retaliation I was facing.

I am not merely a client who "forgot" a payment; I am a professional whose life and safety net were systematically dismantled by corporate actions—first by my employer and then by Discovery Bank's administrative failure.

I have escalated this to the NFO to hold Discovery accountable for starting this chain of events. I am pleading with Metropolitan management to view this case with the compassion it deserves. I need to travel and bury my loved one this week, and I am currently destitute due to the occupational detriment I have suffered.

I look forward to a favourable decision so I can focus on my grief.

Kind regards,
