Dear Professional Affairs Team,

During our meeting, the Professional Conduct Committee indicated hesitation in issuing a ruling on this matter. I want to restate the core issue plainly:

Under the Nursing Act and Pharmacy Act, a registered professional's first duty is to the public interest and patient safety – not to an employer's software or operational convenience.

I identified a Priority 1 risk (the 7-year acute drainage issue) that was causing direct financial harm to a 75-year-old widow. Despite this, I was instructed to "probe" her for non-adherence – which would have required me to ignore the forensic data in front of me.

To follow that instruction would have been professional negligence. By refusing, I upheld my statutory duty.

So I ask the Committee directly:

Does the Council's ethical code permit a pharmacist or nurse to knowingly use flawed data to influence a patient's behaviour?

The Protected Disclosures Act provides that no employee may be subjected to an occupational detriment for making a protected disclosure. The GRC Memorandum of 16 December 2025 was a formal disclosure.

The charge of insubordination followed immediately after I refused to contact the member. The alarming suppression by the Risk Officer (CRO) on 18 December 2025 confirms the pattern.

If the disclosure was made in good faith and based on verified data (the 2017–2024 RCA), then refusing to retract or silence it is an ethical necessity – not a conduct violation.

If the Council cannot confirm that a specialist is ethically required to report a 7-year siphoning of public funds, then the Council is effectively ruling that professional registration is subordinate to corporate secrecy.

Is that the precedent the Council wishes to set?

I request a written response to the above question, and confirmation that my refusal to act on flawed data will not be treated as misconduct.

Yours professionally,

Sr. Wilbur W Matthee
