Okay, great stuff. So, I think there is a huge communication problem between me and you at the moment. I don't think that what you are doing is really supporting what we need to achieve as a team and as a level two.

There is the request that I asked you to attend to. You said that you will not attend to it. You're sending escalations to CBNR without us knowing what it's about.

We need to do reporting on those. If I have to get any questions, I wouldn't know. Maybe the intention is that I should not be knowing, but as a team leader... Okay, so, sorry to stop the conversation.

That is not the intention. First of all, immediately after I sent that message to some PWA, I informed you saying that I am sorry, but I forgot to CC you in that complaint. Do you remember me sending that email to you? I did.

I did inform you. I did inform you. As soon as I sent that CMBR referral, I sent you an email.

I just want to open my email quickly. If I speak again, if you can just give me the opportunity to finish speaking, I would appreciate that first. We can't all speak at the same time.

I don't know what your intention is with what is happening at the moment, but it's not right. I'm not standing for that. Hold on.

Let me finish. I was in my police office. I asked if you now want to go to the other team.

You said, no, no, no, no, no. But what you are doing now, you are undermining me. You are undermining what I'm trying to do in the team.

(2:23 - 6:19)

I would really appreciate if you think about that, take a step back. I do not want you to get into a situation where I ask you to do something, then you have to apologize and send me a long letter afterwards. Let's avoid that.

You should also take into consideration, Mary-Anne, that I'm also still learning. This is also new to me. All this stuff that I'm doing is new and sometimes I do forget this little thing here.

Hence, I did send you that follow-up email on the CMBR query. I told you good afternoon. I just wanted to let you know that I reached out to SMP regarding a CMBR admission concern.

I realized afterwards that I didn't consult you first or CC you in the email. Please let me know if you'd like me to forward the details or keep you updated on the outcomes. You replied to me on that email just, good day, Wilma.

That's right. And then I said, thank you for the SOP. So, I did reply and I did get back to you.

So, you should also take it from a manager's point of view that I am also learning this stuff and I am going to make mistakes along the way. So, Wilma, why don't you reach out to me when you have a question, when you're wondering about something? Why don't you reach out to me first? Don't I normally do? Don't I normally do reach out to you? No, you didn't. The CMBR, you didn't.

You did not for the CMBR. That's one example that you did not. That's why I sent you immediately the follow-up email in telling you that good afternoon.

I did not. I realized afterwards I didn't consult and I didn't CC you in the email. Okay.

So, do you think in that case, if you'd forgotten, wouldn't it have been more transparent if you just had to send this email and this referral that I sent to thinking, apologies that I didn't include you from the first place. So, now you're asking me permission. Should I have included you in this? I don't think that is the right way to do it.

You didn't read the email correctly. Maybe take a step back. And the noise that you're creating today is another thing.

I spoke to you this morning. When I want to speak to you, I reach out to you and I speak to you. All right? I just didn't think it was fair for you to tell me this morning before I started to work that I need to be back in office when the agreement wasn't that.

That wasn't the initial agreement we had. And that's why I asked the team if anyone else received that information and no one received that information. What does that tell me then at the end of the day? What does it tell you? Maybe I'm being targeted.

Maybe I was going to be... I thought so. I thought you made a case of harassment against me last time. Isn't that so? And you misspelled my name in an email.

Go check. So, I can make a case of harassment against you too. I don't want to go back and forth with you about things that's really not valid or to talk about.

So, I want us to focus on what is really important. Yes. You want to focus on what is important.

I want to say to you what you are currently doing. I'm not in line with what you're currently doing. All right? If you're not happy in this team, ask to be removed from the team.

Yeah, I'd rather do that. Yes. I'd rather do that.

Send me an email asking if you can be removed from the team because you do communicate like that. So, if that is what we've been doing here, it's not working for you because it's definitely not working if you just go. We had a discussion and then you go, boom.

No, I don't work like that. Clarity. I don't think there's anything wrong with that because you made it final.

(6:19 - 6:51)

When you told me this morning, you made it final. I need to be back in office on Monday. Did you want clarity? No extra.

That's the clarity I wanted. But why should we, when we've already made arrangements, when we already made plans, when we already know what we're going to be doing for the next month or so, and now all of a sudden, boom, I need to be back in office. Maybe it is like you say, you're being targeted.

Last time you said I was harassing you. I'm spelling your name. So, this time around, it's targeting you.

(6:53 - 7:05)

So, tomorrow it can be victimization. And that can also be something you can throw in there. Yeah.

Yeah. So, please, Wilbur, just be mindful. Take a step back if you have to.

(7:06 - 7:15)

Think things through before you just go out there and just do whatever you are doing at the moment now. Because as me, as a team leader. So, it was wrong what I did asking for clarity.

(7:16 - 10:13)

It was wrong for me asking clarity. But a team. The team.

The team who volunteered to do the pilot study. I was supposed, I had to get clarity from them as well, because if it counts for me, it should count for everyone else on the pilot study. Yeah.

I think last time we did have a problem with the communication where you mentioned maybe the communication wasn't clear. I think it is still unclear. Maybe it would be best for you then to ask Mapule if you can move to another team leader.

Yeah. I think that would be the best. Yes, I think so.

Because, yeah, I don't want to be after the fact find out as a team leader that has expectations in a row after the fact found out, x, y, z, whatever. And you will not do this. You will not do that.

That is creating complications in the team for me as your team leader. Yes, definitely. Yeah.

I agree. Yeah. So, I will give you final feedback on the Monday working.

But please, in future, please rather respond instead of reacting. I would appreciate that. I think that's just what both of us can do.

Just respond. Don't react. Just respond.

Yeah. So, oh, I will definitely respond next time. Because I didn't know who to respond to because you've already made up your mind.

You already said this is set. I need to be back on Monday. So, yeah.

So, that's why I wanted some clarity. Yes. But I do feel that, yeah, maybe the best if you have a problem with my, rather ask Mapule if you can meet.

Don't worry. I don't have a problem. I don't have a problem with you.

I maybe have a problem in the way you do things because you also phoned me out of office hours to tell me that. That was quite, for me, that was a bit upsetting as well. Could have thought, like, so short notice.

I've already got my plans out and, yeah, I get this news. Oh, no. But this is what needs to happen now.

And that was not pre-discussed or anything. So, to me, that was short notice. It was, wow, did the policy change? Did the agreement change? I don't know.

So, hence, I asked for clarity. Wilbur, I work after hours, many hours, where you send me a message when I'm not working. I'm not officially on duty.

And still, I respond back to you. So, please, you see, this is a perfect example now of you wanting to exploit one situation. But please remember the other side of the thing.

I sit there by my computer. I'm not working. It's past my working time.

(10:13 - 10:24)

You're sending me a message, and I respond back to you. I give you the courtesy of responding back to you, even though I'm not working. So, please, don't make things more than what it is.

(10:25 - 12:35)

All right? Just take from both sides. So, yes, I phoned you before the time this morning. But, oh, let me just remember, Mary-Anne also do respond to me when she's not working.

So, see it from that side. That was quite upsetting for me. I do see it from that side.

Yeah, and that's why I'm asking that you respond, don't react. Act, yeah, true, true. So, like I said, I do not have a problem with working with you, Mary-Anne.

That is not the thing that I have. It's just the fact that this was really, I was so shocked. I was like, whoa, why? What happened? Did the agreement change? What's going on? And you're set in stone.

Remember the schedule was made out when we didn't even start with the pilot? Remember? The schedule was made out way before the time. And since then, the pilot has grown. Things have changed.

This had to be adjusted. Everybody was told in the beginning, you can work eight to five. And then that was changed.

And the team was upset about that. And we had to say, no, in-office staff work eight o'clock. And staff from home work the later shift and all of that things.

So, from where we started to where we are, and I don't think we are finished with all the changes in any case. And as we are saying, we are seeing everything that is happening now. Three more questions came up this morning.

How do we deal with this and that and whatever that we have to now see how we're going to combat that as well. So, we're not finished. This is a pilot.

Nothing is cast in stone, but things are subject to change as well. So, maybe we'll just open, what do you call that? Open mindset to whatever can still be changed. This is a pilot after all.

So, that means, yes, we want the better outcome. Yes, you guys want this. But there is quite a bit of challenges.

And I mentioned that also when I reached out to you guys with all of this of the pilot that everybody wants. So, yeah. So, please just keep an open mind.

I would appreciate if you take a step back. If you do decide that you do ask Mapule that you want to be out of the team. But I also believe that me and you as a team, I was supporting you for months on end.

But I cannot continue on the way that we are continuing on. As a team leader, was somebody in my team, another question I want to ask you, because you're in my team, not my team, in our team. Are you having meetings with the team? Are you scheduling meetings with the teams in the department? So, to be honest, yes.

(13:14 - 13:23)

Yeah. And tell me, Robert, because I became aware of it. Then, how often is those meetings? It's not often.

(13:24 - 14:43)

How often is not often? We only had one meeting. One meeting. Okay.

Great. Because, and now, operationally, if that is happening, if we're looking at operationally, that's now the whole team. I don't know all the details, of course.

But if that is happening, and depending on how often it's happening, how long is this meeting, would it affect us operationally? Would we as team leaders be able to justify why that was happening? Is it necessary? Is it a union meeting? Should it be a union meeting? Or is it just a nice, chill department kind of meeting? Should we then cancel the dischilling sessions and things that we're having? How, what is the effect of this at the end of the day? Shall we tell away or something else? So, the team discussion on the work from home policy was a meeting that I created prior to sending this email to Mapule requesting for the policy. It was just a short meeting that we had to discuss on what we want to put in on the email and stuff. It wasn't a long meeting.

Was that put on the timesheet of the team? Did I approve that? Was it now in October or September? It was in September. September. Was that put on the timesheet, the time? No, I don't think so.

(15:08 - 15:56)

Not? Don't think so. Okay, don't think so. Okay, because if I did approve that, then that is so wrong.

If I approved that time on that thingy, timesheet, if it was something that untoward. Wilma, I think when you come into office, we need to have a person face-to-face. I like face-to-face in such instances, but I do believe this is not healthy.

What's happening now is not healthy. I've worked very hard to get to a healthier point. I thought you were adding to it.

(15:56 - 16:17)

I'm not 100% sure now. We need to find a way forward then, or otherwise you will need to reach out to Mapole then. But what is happening at the moment is not healthy for me and you, for our team, and for what's happening in the department as well.

(16:18 - 20:55)

We should have a one-on-one about that, face-to-face. So what you're also telling me right now, Miriam, if you say something, basically, I cannot ask for a second opinion. I should just go with what you say, right? That's what you're saying.

Well, but you don't ask for second opinions. What do you mean? If I'm as clear about something and you didn't answer me, and I need more clarity, why can't I ask for clarity? I hear you. I hear what you're saying.

So you're talking about what you put in the chat now, where you advise to maybe speak to your team lead about it first then. But we spoke about it. Yeah, I know.

And still, you cleared all of this with the team, and somebody had to go into the chat and say, perhaps, you should discuss it with your team leader. Yeah, maybe re-discuss it. That's why I broke up in the meeting we had, because I was also unsure how to go about this, because, yeah, like, I don't know, like you've already said it, it's, if I don't return to work, that can be seen as insubordination, as you mentioned before, where I instructed on that email.

I didn't say, if you don't return to work, then it can be seen as... No, you didn't say that. No, you didn't say that. I said it can be seen.

The session is recorded. I said it can be seen as insubordination. It can be seen as that, and I do not want that, because, obviously, we already have that issue about the email, about the callback to that member.

I really felt bad about it afterwards when I reviewed it, and I thought to myself, shoot, this can be seen as insubordination. And that was insubordination, yes, it was. But, okay, I do hear you, but I did have a valid point at the time, as I would have liked you guys to tell me, okay, fine, I do hear you, but please do phone this member, and then we can maybe escalate it to the DMS team, X, Y, and Z. No, Lisa Marie said, Lisa Marie, Lisa Marie, you know who she, the strategic team, she's the top of this, she said, she spoke into their hearings.

Yes, but then, remember, then I just followed up on my investigation, and then I thought to myself, oh, goodness. I think we need to come into office. We're going to write all of these down, unpack each one, what's happening.

Now it's not healthy. I come to work to work. I do not come to work to strive about emails, and about this, and about that, and no, it's too much.

It's not healthy for me. We need to take a step back. A step back.

Cool, so there's no, you're also telling me there's no room for growth then. If I take, constantly take a step back, if I don't, if I'm not in agreement with something, I should just take a step back, right? Well, Bob, I'm not telling you nothing. I'm not telling you nothing.

You hear what you're saying? I'm telling you. No, I'm not telling you nothing. I didn't tell you nothing.

I'm not telling you. I'm saying, don't respond, don't react, rather respond. Take a step back.

Meaning, basically, just before you want to, Ganga, think about it first. Think about it first. So, think about what, if you're starting something, think about, okay, you're starting this now, what can the ripple effect of all of this be at the end of the day? I'm not saying you mustn't question it.

I'm not saying that you mustn't question it. But think of your actions and the ripple effect of your actions at the end of the day. But, like I said, this is not what's happening.

It's not healthy. And, you know, I try to keep it open, honest, whatever. We haven't spoken since we've been in the office there.

I think it's time for us to sit and face to face besides before, without my polerium. If you decide you're still going to go there, yes, you go there. But I think it's important that we must have some other healthier something going on.

(20:56 - 21:36)

But you do have a recording as proof if you need it. So, Wilbur, I will chat to you later again. I did call you because I felt what was happening was a bit uncalled for.

Yes, you wanted clarity. And I'm glad that somebody in the chat said maybe you must rediscuss it with your team leader then. So, yeah, I did appreciate that.

So, I will speak to you again this afternoon. We, as the team leaders with a hybrid, need to have a meeting. I did reach out to them.

(21:38 - 21:55)

And I'm waiting on a response so that we can all come to a consensus about this, that, and the other, about the hybrid. We'll give you feedback later. Thank you very much.

Great stuff. Thank you. Bye.
