Dear Bongani,

Thank you for your response. I note your inability to agree to the terms in my previous email, as the matter has only now been brought to your attention. However, this does not address the over 30 days of institutional silence on my formal grievances, which prompted the CCMA referral [EWECT0525003440].

For clarity, please specify which of my proposed conditions you disagree, along with the meeting's intended agenda and purpose. Without this, the meeting risks being unproductive.

I remain willing to attend on a without prejudice basis to my CCMA case, subject to receiving the above. If not, I will consider the process exhausted and focus on the CCMA proceedings.

Kind regards,
Wilbur Matthee

Good Day Wilbur

Unfortunately, I cannot agree to below as I was only made aware of your matter per the attached email you sent date 04/12/2025 @12:29pm

The proposal remains for an engagement with you on the 10th to discuss and determine next steps.

Kind regards,

Bongani

Subject: Confirmation of meeting: Regarding Formal Grievance and CCMA Referral [Case number: EWECT0125184368]

Dear Bongani,

I acknowledge the request for a meeting on 10th December 2025 from 09:00 to 10:00.

I must note that this matter has been formally referred to the CCMA for conciliation due to the 30+ day institutional silence on my filed grievances. The case reference is [EWECT0525003440].

I will attend the meeting on the following basis:

1. The purpose is to receive the company's written, point-by-point response to my formal complaints of (a) unlawful salary deduction, (b) victimisation and intimidation, and (c) discrimination.
2. Given the legal nature of the dispute and my current medical state due to these events (I will provide a medical certificate), I will be recording the meeting to ensure an accurate record. I propose this in the interest of transparency for all parties.
3. I will not be re-litigating facts already submitted in writing. I am there to receive the company's official position.

Please confirm your agreement to these conditions and provide an agenda by [08 December 2024, 48hrs before meeting].

Regards,

Wilbur Matthee

What is your desired outcome now that you have escalated the matter and considering you have already referred the matter to CCMA?

Dear Bongani,

I trust this email finds you well.

Following your request for clarity, I am writing to formally document a critical failure in the process regarding my second formal grievance.

There has been a complete 30-day institutional silence and failure to act.

To be specific:

1. My formal grievance, submitted in early November 2025, was met with no acknowledgment, no interim protection, and no intervention from HR or the union.
2. A follow-up submission of critical evidence (the audio recording) to senior management a few days later was also met with total silence.
3. This institutional inaction forced me to escalate directly to executive management in December 2025 as a last resort.

This 30-day silence left me exposed and unprotected under the management of the very individual I had accused, directly leading to the escalation and retaliatory measures documented in my email of December 3/4, 2025.

The current crisis is not an isolated event. It is a direct consequence of the grievance process failing at its most basic level: to acknowledge a complaint and provide interim protection to a complainant.

Kind regards,

Wilbur

Subject: Re: Confirmation of meeting: Regarding Formal Grievance and CCMA Referral [Case number: EWECT0125184368]

Dear Bongani,

Thank you for the question. To be clear, my "desired outcome" from this internal escalation to the Board is not just a personal settlement. It is for the company to fulfill its fiduciary and legal duties to mitigate the material risks that have been documented.

The CCMA process will adjudicate the past dispute. Concurrently, the company has an immediate and non-delegable responsibility to address the ongoing and systemic failures that the escalation outlines.

Therefore, the required outcomes from the company's leadership are actionable steps to:

1. Immediately Neutralize the Retaliatory Environment: Implement interim measures to ensure I am not subject to the managerial authority of the individual accused in the pending matters, effective immediately.
2. Rescind the Unlawful Policy Directive: Formally retract the instruction from Mary-Ann Jones dated 3 December 2025 stating overtime is "for your own account," as it constitutes a unilateral change and potential unfair labor practice.
3. Initiate an Independent Governance Review: Mandate a review by the Board's relevant committees (Ethics/Risk) into the complete failure of the internal grievance and whistleblowing procedures, as evidenced by the 30-day institutional silence and lack of interim protection.
4. Provide a Formal Accountability Response: A written response from the Board or its delegated officers detailing how the company will close the governance gaps that allowed this situation to escalate, in order to prevent recurrence.

My role in this internal escalation is that of a reporting party highlighting material risk. It is now the responsibility of the company's governance structures which you are part of to determine and execute the appropriate corrective actions.

I await the company's proposed plan to address these points.

Regards,

Wilbur

Good Day Wilbur

I do not know or understand what you are expecting nor wanted out of the escalation sent 04/12/2025 considering this matter has now seemingly been referred to CCMA and now as stated below to the board, All in the space of 2 working days? I would suggest we allow your formal process with CCMA to conclude accordingly. We also appear to be having vastly different and varying conversations (some that contradict each other) with the multitude of emails submitted by yourself (attached), hence the original suggestion and request to meet with you in order to understand the issues and agree the best way forward which you have now declined below.

Your senior manager has indicated attempts to change your reporting lines were declined by yourself previously on previous engagements, please advise if your position has since changed in this regard and communicate that accordingly with your senior manager.

Dear Bongani,

Thank you for your response.

Given your position that internal engagement should cease despite the ongoing risks I have documented—including potential unfair labour practices and continued exposure to the manager in question—I am left with no choice but to escalate this matter in a final good-faith attempt to avert further damage.

This constitutes formal notice that I am escalating the complete breakdown of internal grievance procedures and the attendant material risks to the Board's Ethics, Risk, and Secretariat committees for urgent intervention.

Wilbur

Good morning, all

Considering the below, I am going to cancel the meeting placeholder for today and allow the CCMA process to take place

I would like to also propose that for Wilbur's psychological safety – we remove him from Mary Annes hierarchy while the process is ongoing and until we can have a resolution /conclusion of the matter.

Hope all is in order

Subject: Re: Confirmation of meeting: Regarding Formal Grievance and CCMA Referral [Case number: EWECT0125184368]

Dear Bongani,

For clarity, as noted in my previous correspondence, only the Ethics, Risk and Secretariat Board members was informed due to the material risk posed at ccma and their governance obligations. - I do not understand this statement, please explain/ clarify?

Regarding your statement, the Senior Manager raised this after the gender identity discrimination case, which referenced the 'Wilma' incident. To date i regret saying that we work good together as i somehow mentioned it but overlooked immediate retaliation and bad intent by my manager, who logged four hours of unpaid leave on my file immediately after formally reporting the 'Wilma' case despite prior discussion to roll back the two hours work time. – Was the unpaid leave justified (i.e.: was there absence where all other leave categories had since been exhausted at the time to warrant unpaid leave? If so, how do you deem this as a retaliation to a seemingly unrelated matter you have raised (i.e.: how do the two relate to each other?)

The Senior Manager later during the conclusion of the investigation discussion instructed her to correct this, ultimately the serious claim was whitewashed as a typo with no consequences.

Attached are my specific demands from my second grievance, filed on November second, addressing unfair labor practices, victimization, discrimination, and constructive dismissal. – Please provide the attachment, nil attached.

These demands were ignored, resulting in ongoing retaliation for over 30days. All claims are substantiated with documented evidence. – Did you subsequently request for your reporting lines the change thereafter knowing that an offer had previously been made?

As a good faith effort seeing that you do have the formal complaints, I can provide a timeline of incidents with descriptions, and will supply supporting evidence upon request. - Yes please supply

Regarding the meeting for the 10th I think have have set reasonable terms and open to hear what you disagree with to make the necessary adjustments or disregard those terms completely focusing only then on a agenda, with that said seeing that you couldn't provide me with those i pre-emptively declined attending the meeting supported later by the focus on ccma by you. – I do not deem the terms as reasonable nor giving reasonable time to respond to, hence I responded indicating I cannot commit to them nor the timelines you had provided. Further, your original escalation dated 04/12/2025 indicated a 14-day period for engagements, resolution etc yet all actions you indicated would happen after the 14 days have already been done, hence I asked and continue to ask what the intention was as what you've requested by your own account has not been upheld. The offer still remains to engage openly on your matter to establish the facts, timelines etc and thereafter be in a position to agree the best way forward, however if the engagement is the same as per that complaint you have lodged with the CCMA, its best to rather allow for that process to conclude accordingly so as to no duplicate matters.

I honestly hope this align better.
